PREFACE.

IT is now twenty years since Mrs. Woodward commenced the preparation of this Index, with the object at the time of providing, for the use of the Editor, a handy MS. reference to the articles in the back volumes of the Geological Magazine.

Two years ago, when the fortieth volume was nearly completed, Mr Wilfrid Hudleston, Prof. T. G. Bonney, Mr. Horace B. Woodward, and other geologists urged upon me the desirability of the publication of this General Index, and, fortified by a grant from the Royal Society, and with the support of several friends, sufficient means have been guaranteed to justify the printing of the work.

It is, therefore, with no small pleasure that I am enabled to submit to the consideration of my geological supporters the results of this laborious undertaking of my wife. It is our first essay at a comprehensive Index, and, needless to say, we shall never make another. For its shortcomings I may claim kind indulgence, as it has been entirely a labour of love; but I cannot be sufficiently grateful for my wife's unfailing patience and courage in carrying her task through to its completion.

In passing the work through the press, and for much advice and assistance, I gratefully acknowledge the valuable help rendered by my nephew, Mr. Horace B. Woodward.

To my friends, Sir Archibald Geikie, Dr. J. E. Marr, Mr. Hudleston, Professor Bonney, the Rev. G. F. Whidborne, the Rev. Ashington Bullen, Mr. A. R. Hunt, and the numerous other supporters and subscribers to this work, my hearty thanks are due. Without their encouragement and aid the Index would never have been printed; but I feel assured that it will prove to be a useful key to the forty volumes of the Geological Magazine (1864–1903), and be the means of saving valuable time to those who are engaged in original research, or are otherwise interested in the history and progress of Geological Science.

HENRY WOODWARD.

129 Beaufort Street, Chelsea, London.
1*st September*, 1905.

NOTE.—The black figures used, ranging from 64 to 03, represent the 40 annual volumes from 1864 to 1903, comprised in this Index; the figures in ordinary type, which follow each year, give the several pages in each volume which refer to the subject indexed. There are no abbreviations which need explanation.

The years in square brackets, at the end of the list of a deceased author's papers, supply the date of his birth and death.

All subjects are treated alphabetically; but the list of each author's papers is given under his name in chronological order. Wherever possible, the christian names of authors have been given in full.—H. W.
